Better materials mean better performance. And better research produces superior materials. The battle against unwanted noise and vibration is not black magic. It's just proper application of the laws of physics.

Noise can be controlled three ways:

- Vibrations may be damped
- Noises may be blocked by a barrier
- Noises may be absorbed

What is critical is which approach is chosen and how good the material is for the job. Scosche has developed the ideal material for each.
